Subject: Ocean FCL Adder Discussion in SEPTEMBER, 2026

Sent by an external sender

Dear Addaline,

Due to the current instability in transportation, we spent some time internally evaluating and adjusting our arrangements for Molex September booking plan, which is why we are issuing the September adder application a little bit late.

In September, international ocean freight rates keep the upward trend seen in August, with significant spikes on routes to the U.S., India, and Southeast Asia. Space became extremely tight, and actual market costs have deviated substantially from the awarded rates. Although we tried our best to maintain the best service and stable transportation for Molex, there is surely huge pressure for us to afford it now and we hereby apply for your approval for the adder in the whole month of September (Sep 1st to Sep 30, 2026) .

To better make our promise, we have done all our best to absorb the cost losses internally. However, on the following two routes where market pressure is exceptionally prominent, the massive gap between current market rates and our awarded rates has now exceeded what we can reasonably absorb on our own. We have no choice but to apply for this adder to ensure smooth arrangements:

Trans-Pacific Lane: Affected by a series of typhoon landfall, restricted passing capacity through Panama Canal, shipping lines' capacity control measures, and blank sailings, market freight rates have continued to surge.

Comparing current market prices with our awarded rates, the price gap for 40HQ containers has already exceeded USD 6,000 per unit. Market capacity supply has tightened to the point where securing a booking has become extremely difficult.

South Asia / India Lane: This route has experienced an significantly unusual sharp surge in freight rates. Persistent geopolitical tensions in the Middle East have prompted shipping lines to adjust their capacity and reroute vessels on the Indian Subcontinent routes, with widespread blank sailings in September. The market is currently in a situation where quoted prices are available but actual space is not, making it extremely difficult to secure vessel slots. Coupled with ongoing congestion at Indian local ports and low vessel turnaround efficiency, freight rates and space costs have been further driven up.

Our awarded price and market general standard price was only a little over USD 2,000 per 40HQ, while current market rates have already exceeded USD 6,000+ per 40HQ, representing an overall increase of nearly 200%, far beyond market prediction.

We remain fully committed to prioritizing Molex space allocation and schedule stability as always.

If you have any outbound/inbound plans, please feel free to reach out to us at any time and we would be happy to jointly evaluate alternative transport solutions.

We fully understand that these price adjustments will impose cost pressures on your side, and we truly appreciate and value our cooperative relationship.

Looking forward to your approval.

Best Regards

Nina 高雨佳

Subject: Ocean FCL Adder Discussion 2nd Half of AUGUST, 2026

Sent by an external sender

Dear Addaline,

Much appreciate your kind understanding and approval of the adder in 1st half of August.

For the 2nd half of the month, we can keep the same adder price on TP routes although the market continues to push up.

Meanwhile, the sharp and unexpected freight rate surge on the India trade lane in early August is still ongoing, and we are compelled to seek your approval for the adders on this route.

This week, the spot market rate for a 40HQ container shipped from East China to Bangalore has jumped from just over USD 2,000 to more than USD 4,600 per 40HQ, an increase of nearly 135%. Tight capacity and the risk of rollover by the carrier has risen markedly.

August to September is the traditional peak season for pre-Diwali import stocking in India, with import volumes being released intensively and booking demand surging substantially.

Affected by continuous tensions in the Strait of Hormuz, major carriers have adopted cautious operational strategies for the Middle East and Indian subcontinent routes, with some sailings making temporary diversions or omitting port calls. As a result, effective capacity in the region has been severely and passively reduced, while operating costs such as war risk premiums have increased concurrently.

To ensure stable arrangements for cargo movements, we are obliged to once again apply for your approval of the attached surcharges.

The attachment contains the adders and the corresponding service routes for the 2nd half of August (August 16–31).

We will continue to monitor space and schedule developments on this trade lane. Once market conditions ease, we will promptly adjust the surcharges downward and notify you without delay.

We kindly request your approval. Thank you for your support.

Best Regards

Dear Addaline,

We fully understand your point on reasonable cost and market alignment. Please find our adjustment adders in the attachment which solely involves a reduction in the EBS/EFS, which closely follows market trends and is consistent with the current rate increase standards of shipping lines.

Additionally, checked Molex monthly BAF, it is mostly not truly reflected market movements and has remained well below actual market levels. The current impact of the Middle East conflict on energy market supply is actually intensified. The rate increases not only on the ocean freight rates to the base port but also on the rail freight rates of inland delivery to IPI points with a corresponding increase of 500-800 USD per FEU.

We sincerely require your kind review of the latest updated surcharge details in the attachment and grant your approval.

Unfortunately, at this moment we have made it clear to all forwarders that EBS/EFS will not be included as part of our adders review. We will review your feedback but for the month of August, will you be able to remove EBS/EFS component first?

Thank you.

Dear Addaline,

Please find my answer below:

1. Do you have announcements from carriers that reflected your mentioned FAK rates? Please share it with us for reference -- attached i have added supporting documents for your kind reference.

2. I noticed you've mentioned that the cost include some additional EBS EFS. These surcharges are already part of our monthly Molex BAF review. We will not accept the additional EBS EFS. Please remove these from the adders. -- Please kindly understand that Molex BAF only for a fuel cost usually included into ocean freight rate(all-in freight), here EBS/EFS is a surcharge apart from the general BAF implementation of the shipping lines.

We sincerely hope your understanding about the current market situation and approval in advance.

Any questions can feel free to let us know.

Subject: Ocean FCL Adder Discussion 1st Half of AUGUST, 2026

Sent by an external sender

Dear Addaline,

During the brief market adjustment in July, we proactively reduced adders for the 2nd half of July in response to market conditions and made every effort to secure stable space for Molex. However, unexpectedly, as we entered August, the global container ocean freight market saw rate hikes which our RFQ awarded rate have once again come under severe cost pressure, while space availability has become increasingly constrained.

As a result, we are compelled to once again submit this adder application for your kind approval.

According to the latest spot rate updates from shipping lines, August has witnessed not only significant increases on the major TP lanes, but also unusually sharp hikes on the India near-sea routes.

TP lanes to the USWC, carriers have uniformly implemented a GRI with spot rates rising by as much as 1500 USD per 40'. Capacity remains in short supply, and quotations change frequently based on each sailing schedule.

For IPI points such as Chicago, the price hikes are compounded by both ocean freight rate increases and the acute shortage of local rail and drayage resources in the U.S.. The per-container increase has reached as high as 1600 USD per 40', with associated inland surcharges also moving upward in tandem.

Additionally, the Indian route seemed to break its usual pattern of moderate near-sea fluctuations. Driven by a surge in manufacturing export orders and capacity restriction resulting from ongoing geopolitical conflicts in the Middle East, freight rates across this route climbed by as much as 1000 USD per 40' in the 1st half of August, stand 4450 USD/40'.

Current geopolitical risks in the Red Sea persist, leading to significantly higher fuel consumption as vessels are forced to reroute. Combined with persistently high international oil prices, Shipping lines continue to inplement EBS/EFS in August as a measure to balance their operating cost.

Therefore, we hereby apply for an adder for 1st half of August, as set out in the following terms and conditions:

1. This adder is intended to offset the additional costs imposed by shipping lines only, particularly rigid costs such as EBS/EFS without any other profit beyond that.

2. This adder is a temporary and phased adjustment effective for the period from August 1 to August 15, 2026, for TP routes only. If the market freight rates subsequently decline and shipping lines roll back their rate increases, we will promptly adjust accordingly.

3. Despite the cost pressures, we will prioritize securing Molex cargo allocations on all routes and make every effort to ensure that your orders are delivered on schedule.

Subject: Ocean FCL Adder Discussion 2nd Half of JULY, 2026

Sent by an external sender

Dear Addaline,

Based on the latest weekly data from the current market conditions, the market drivers that previously supported the sharp freight rate surge in July are gradually tapering off. Coupled with the concentrated addition of new capacity by carriers, spot rates have seen a modest decline.

In response, we have dynamically reduced the adders on the listed routes. The newly adjusted surcharge schedule is attached for your reference.

We would like to clarify the following:

1. Effective timing of the adjustment: This adder reduction takes effect immediately on July 16 and applies to our awarded routes listed for the second half of July. All settlements will be strictly based on the latest revised standards.

2. Commitment to long-term partnership: It has always been our principle to absorb reasonable pressure during market upturns and to pass on savings to MOLEX as soon as the market softens.

Once again, we sincerely appreciate your trust, understanding, and long-standing support. We remain dedicated to serving you with integrity, professionalism, and transparency, and to deepening our mutually beneficial partnership.

Hi Nina,

Thank you, I might be looking at Sheet1 tab instead of the summary file.

We will proceed to file these for July. By the way, I understand from some market updates today that the current rates may not be as sustainable in coming weeks as more and more new capacity will be injected into the market, especially for US west coast.

Do assist to monitor the situation and push back to carriers if needed. I would like to be able to review the adders promptly should there be opportunities to avoid the higher PSS.
Thank you.

Best regards,

Dear Addaline,

Actually there is no change in adder for Hudson route in 1st half of July according to the summary.

The first adder rate card is the format used in the 2nd half of June. Only updated to July in the attached revised rate card list.

Hi Nina,

Appreciate your timely submission and clear explanation of the market.
While I do agree with your sentiments of the market, I find that the adders to Rancho Cucamonga are on higher than our expectations.

As our latest BAF for July is higher than the award file as well, appreciate if you are able to review to reduce the adders for Rancho; our target for CN-USWC gateway is around USD5700 P2P.

Thank you.

Best regards,

Dear Addaline,

Although we had already anticipated the shipping lines' aggressive freight rate hikes for July by the end of June, the actual market upward trend in July still exceeded our expectations, with volatility far beyond prediction.

The spot market rates published by major carriers are being refreshed daily and continue to climb by week. TP routes have seen particularly sharp rises in FAK rates on the USWC are now nearly on par with pandemic-era levels. Spot rates for IPI points such as Chicago, Detroit have surged to 10,000–11,000 USD/FEU, creating a huge gap compared with our awarded rates.

This ocean freight surge in July is far beyond normal fluctuation ranges and already exceeding our cost-bearing capability. In order to best safeguard transport services against market shocks and avoid risks such as failed space bookings and shipment delays, we hereby seek your approval for adders on the current awarded routes, effective for the first half of July (July 1–15).

Bondex always committed to prioritizing Molex needs and minimizing the impact of price adjustments on Molex. We sincerely thank you for your full understanding of the significant surge in the current ocean freight market.

We will continue to closely monitor the market trend.Once there are any changes, we will promptly adjust accordingly, and continue to provide you with stable, high-quality, cost-effective logistics fulfillment services.

If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to reach out.

Thank you again for your understanding and unwavering support!

Dear Addaline,

Although we have long-term contracts with shipping lines, and the carriers will not directly break the agreements, the core pain point is that our NVOCC allocated space is currently being severely restriced. Shipping lines have been continuously tightening the release ratio for NVOCC bookings, and a large amount of contracted space is being rolled over. To secure space and ensure stable transit times, we have no choice but to book at spot market prices, as we are unable to use the contract rates we signed.

If we do not accept the spot market prices, the shipping lines will delay space release, making it hard to meet the requested sailing schedules.

Hence, as mentioned in my explanation, even though we hold contracts, the carriers are effectively charging us the same rates as spot space for freight forwarders.

As shown in the screenshot, the shipping line's official system has issued a reply stating that for our booking of 2×40HQ on the vessel, the approved space release is 0.

This situation has been emerging gradually since mid-to-late May and has occurred frequently in June.

Hi Nina,

Thank you for your explanation. I would like to confirm a few points;

1. You've mentioned that these are increases in the spot market rates. Are carriers imposing similar increases to Forwarders even though you have a contractual agreement with them?
2. Would you be able to share some of the announcements that carriers are providing to Bondex on this increase for our reference?

Thank you.

Subject: Ocean FCL Adder Discussion 2nd Half of JUNE, 2026

Dear Addaline and team,

We sincerely appreciate your continued trust and support. Guided by the principles of integrity, performance, and mutual benefit, we have been fully committed to ensuring the stability and efficiency of MOLEX Ocean FCL operations, strictly in accordance with the awarded promise. The purpose of this letter is to formally apply for a temporary surcharge for U.S.-bound shipments, in light of the unprecedented and extreme volatility that has hit the international ocean freight market. We kindly seek your understanding and approval of this exceptional request.

Since the effective date of our contracted rates in May, the international ocean freight market has experienced an unforeseen surge which was far beyond industry expectations. Notably, U.S.-bound freight rates have soared dramatically, driven by severe supply-demand imbalances, critical capacity shortages and also tightened fuel resources. These changes represent market shifts that could not have been reasonably anticipated at the time of bidding period.

As awarded, the agreed rate for U.S.-bound routes stands at 2,500 USD/40' which is a figure reflecting strong goodwill and pricing stability. However, starting in May, actual spot rates to the USWC skyrocketed from 3,500 USD to as high as 6,800 USD/40' by late June, resulting in a per-container gap of up to almost 4,500 USD.

In consideration of contractual spirit and ensuring smooth delivery, BONDEX absorbed the full amount of the massive rate gap for the past one and a half months since May. During the period of time, we continued to secure bookings and perform shipments without any delays, cargo hold-ups, or service downgrades despite the market fluctuation, although the average actual gap between awarded rate and fak rate per 40' container approached nearly 3,000 USD.

Moreover, shipping lines now manage to keep contracted allocation only for BCO clients, while taking measures against NVOCC contract commitments such as frequent adjustments in fak freight rates, imposing sharply higher PSS, and offloading containers without any pre-alerts. Under these circumstances, it is truly hard for BONDEX to keep our service quality under this sudden market risk alone on a long-term basis.

Although this additional surcharge application, we gave full consideration to MOLEX cost control needs and made a cautious adjustment applying only to the U.S.-bound routes as follows effective from June 15th to June 30th, 2026, which have been hit hardest by the current market surge.

All other awarded lanes will remain unchanged so as to minimize the impact on MOLEX overall procurement and logistics costs.

F20	CNZUH	USMES	4270	386	4656	8190
F40	CNZUH	USMES	4604	772	5376	9100

The current extreme freight rate spike is industry-wide, sudden, and uncontrollable market fluctuation.

BONDEX will continue to closely monitor ocean freight market trends and adjust once there are any changes.

We deeply regret any inconvenience this adjustment may cause to you, and kindly ask for your understanding and approval of this temporary surcharge given the extreme market environment and our long-term commitment.

Best Regards

Nina 高雨佳
